| THE  | REPLY FILED 20 July 2005 FAILS TO PLACE THIS APPLICATION IN CONDITION FOR ALLOWANCE.  |                                   |                                     |  |  |  |  |
|  | The reply was filed after a final rejection, but prior to or on the same day as filing a Notice of Appeal. To avoid abandonment of this application, applicant must timely file one of the following replies: (1) an amendment, affidavit, or other evidence, which places the application in condition for allowance; (2) a Notice of Appeal (with appeal fee) in compliance with 37 CFR 41.31; or (3) a Request for Continued Examination (RCE) in compliance with 37 CFR 1.114. The reply must be filed within one of the                                  |                                   |                                     |  |  |  |  |

| •  | The period for reply expiresmonths from the mailing date of the final rejection.  The period for reply expires on: (1) the mailing date of this Advisory Action, or (2) the date set forth in the final rejection, whichever is later. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of the final rejection.  Examiner Note: If box 1 is checked, check either box (a) or (b). ONLY CHECK BOX (b) WHEN THE FIRST REPLY WAS FILED WITHIN TWO MONTHS OF THE FINAL REJECTION. See MPEP 706.07(f). |                                   |                                     |  |  |  |  |
| Extensions of time may be obtained under 37 CFR 1.136(a). The date on which the petition under 37 CFR 1.136(a) and the appropriate extension fee have been filed is the date for purposes of determining the period of extension and the corresponding amount of the fee. The appropriate extension fee under 37 CFR 1.17(a) is calculated from: (1) the expiration date of the shortened statutory period for reply originally set in the final Office action; or (2) as set forth in (b) above, if checked. Any reply received by the Office later than three months after the mailing date of the final rejection, even if timely filed, may reduce any earned patent term adjustment. See 37 CFR 1.704(b). U.S. Patent and Trademark Office PTOL-303 (Rev. 4-05) Advisory Action Before the Filing of an Appeal Brief TECHNOLOGY CENTER 2700 Paper No. 20050806

Applicant's arguments presented July 20, 2005 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Applicant argues, in substance, that (1) McMillan does not disclose determining verification data that the receiver actually viewed the document image, rather that one server tells another server that it has sent emails (2) McMillan discloses the server logging the start of a program on a server and not logging an acknowledgement from a client computer that it has successfully displayed an image (3) McMillan teaches that the reciever has to sign into a document server, not an email server, (4) it is not inherent that any HTTP GET requests from a reciever computer to a server is an address which indicates where the server is to route a document referenced by the request, and that therefor and HTTP GET requests verifies that the reciever has successfully displayed the document.

As to point (1) Applicant must have an understanding as to how Internet content works to understand the system of McMillan. Once the email has been received by the client, a request sent by the client corresponding to the document wishing to be viewed. Therefore once the document has been opened (i.e. the email has been opened by the client email viewing software), they can respectfully select the link. Once, and only once, the recipient has successfully viewed the email, can the link be selected. Once this link is selected, the server logs this action and it is then determined that the recipient has successfully viewed the email. By this rationale, the rejection is maintained.

As to point (2) the server logging the start of the program can only happen if the user has successfully viewed the email document. By this rationale, the rejection is maintained.

As to point (3) Applicant is not claiming that the document server has a log in system, rather that a recipient must sign on to a server computer. Applicant does not distinguish between a document server nor an email server. Furthermore an email server is a document server since an email is a document. By this rationale, the rejection is maintained.

As to point (4) this is upheld for the reasions stated in point (1), furthermore the HTTP GET feature shows the address of the recipient. Applicant is neglecting the fact that an email is a document and that once the email is displayed, the response is sent to the server computer from the client. By this rationale, the rejection is maintained.
